

a lesson deck, in eight pages

how to build a product where nothing happens.

a founder's notes
on building celestial.

lesson 1 the mechanic

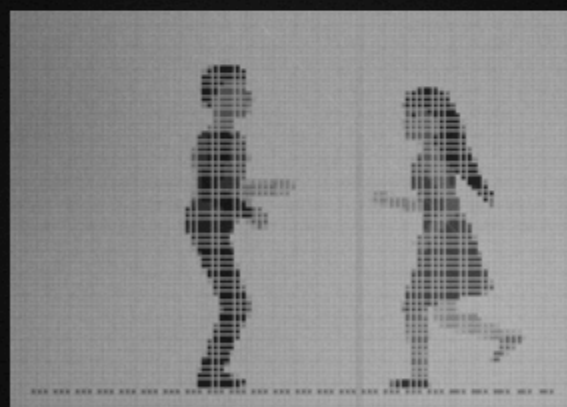

you send a note
privately.

they never know.

unless they send
you one back.

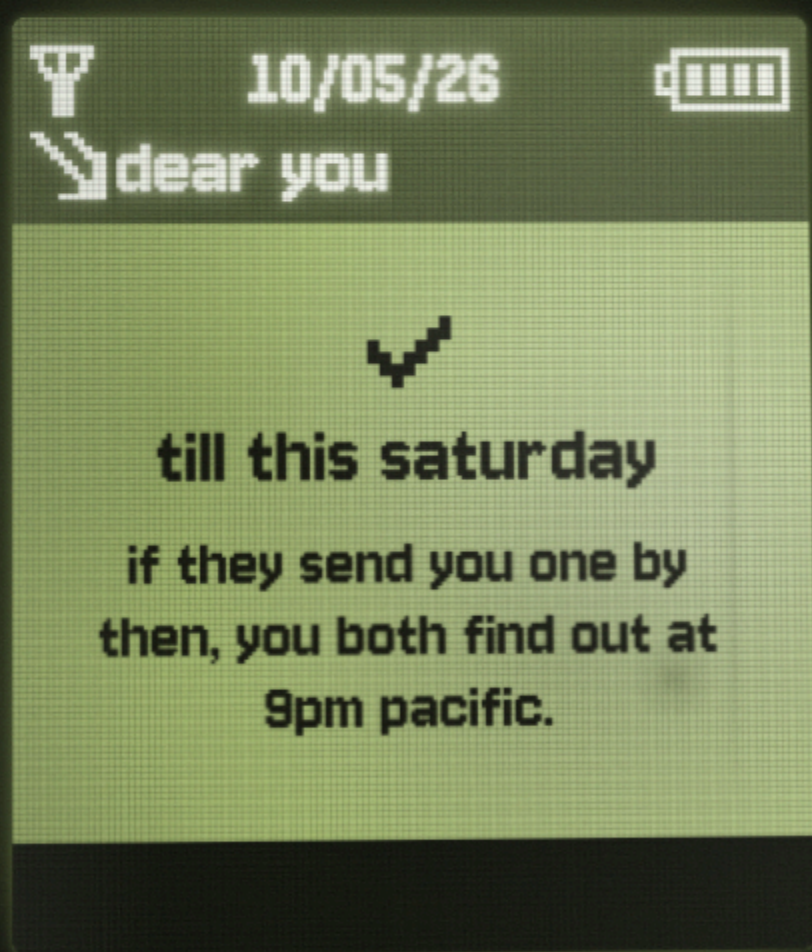

then it's mutual.

fig. 2 the story the product tells, in four frames.

lesson 2 silence

silence is the product working.

if it's ever mutual, you'll both know.
if it isn't, nobody ever will.

mon 10/05 sent privately.

tue 10/06

wed 10/07

thu 10/08

fri 10/09

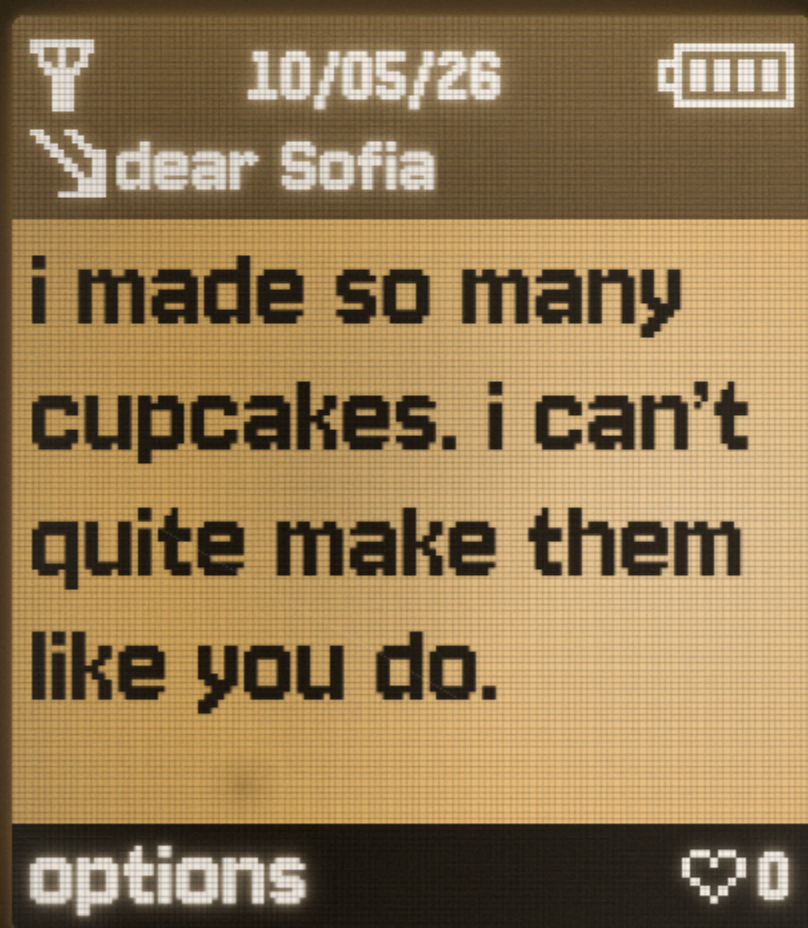

sat 10/10 9pm pacific.

fig. 3 a note, standing.

lesson 3 counts

truth, exactly.

every count is exactly true, or it isn't there.
no implied activity. no padded numbers.

the battery
the writer's to set.
it counts nothing,
so it claims nothing.

the heart
nobody has hearted it,
so it says 0.

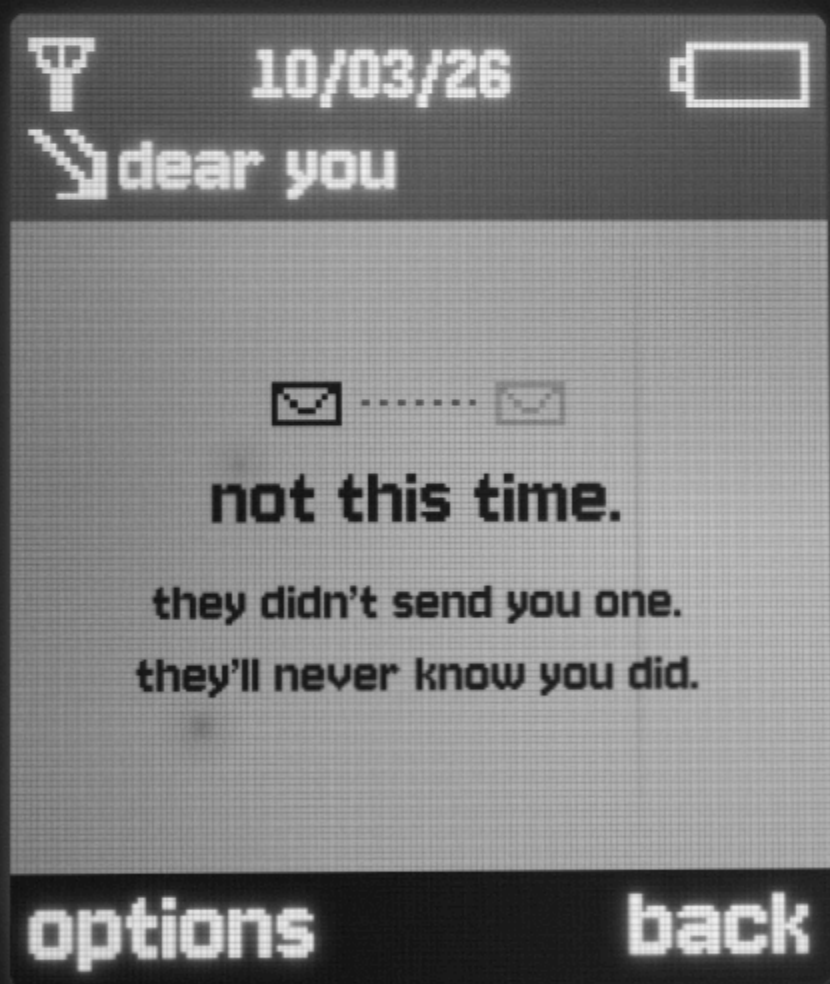

fig. 4 a letter on the wall, as it stands.

lesson 4 words

our copy has a linter.

no exclamation marks. no emoji. no dashes.

a script reads every word the product says,
the mails included, and fails on any of the three.

*a dash
is a writer
stalling.*

celestial's voice guide

fig. 5 a night that was not mutual. it passes.

lesson 5 light

one bright thing per screen.

a lit surface or a bloom. never both,
and never two of either.
the eye has to land somewhere.

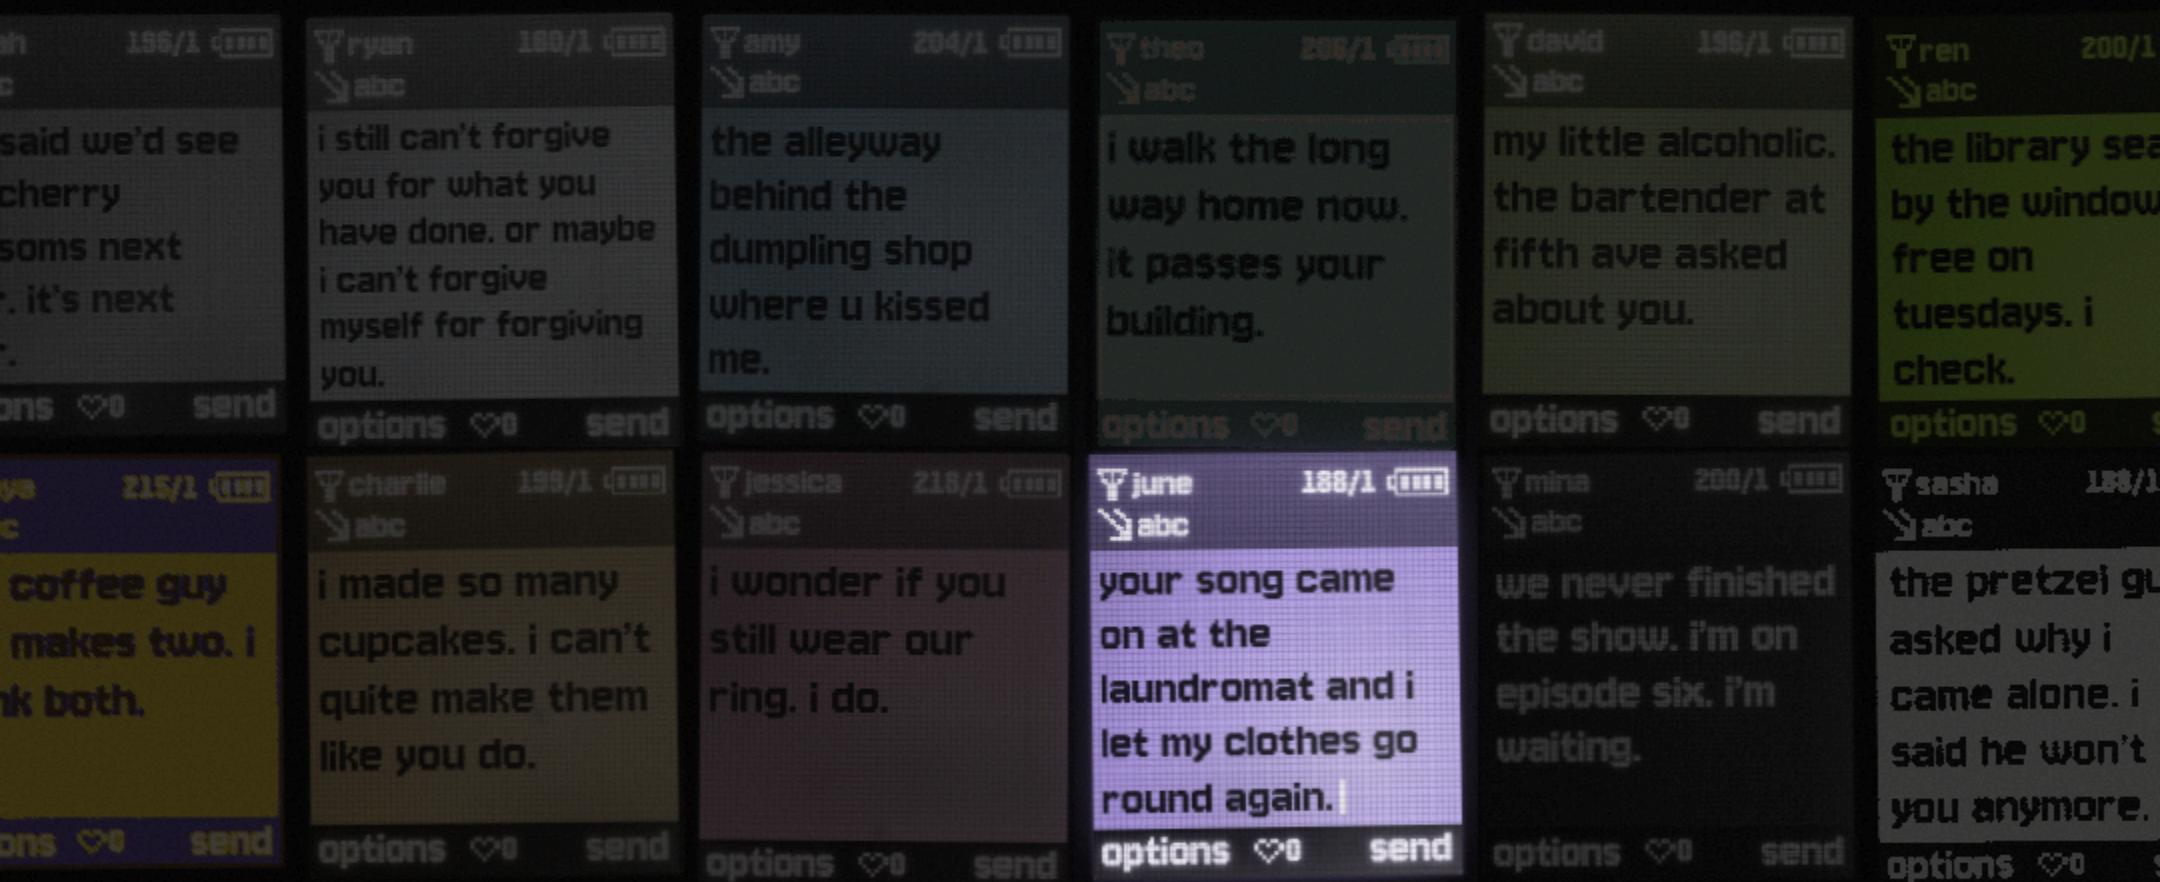

fig. 6 twelve colours, and one of them on.

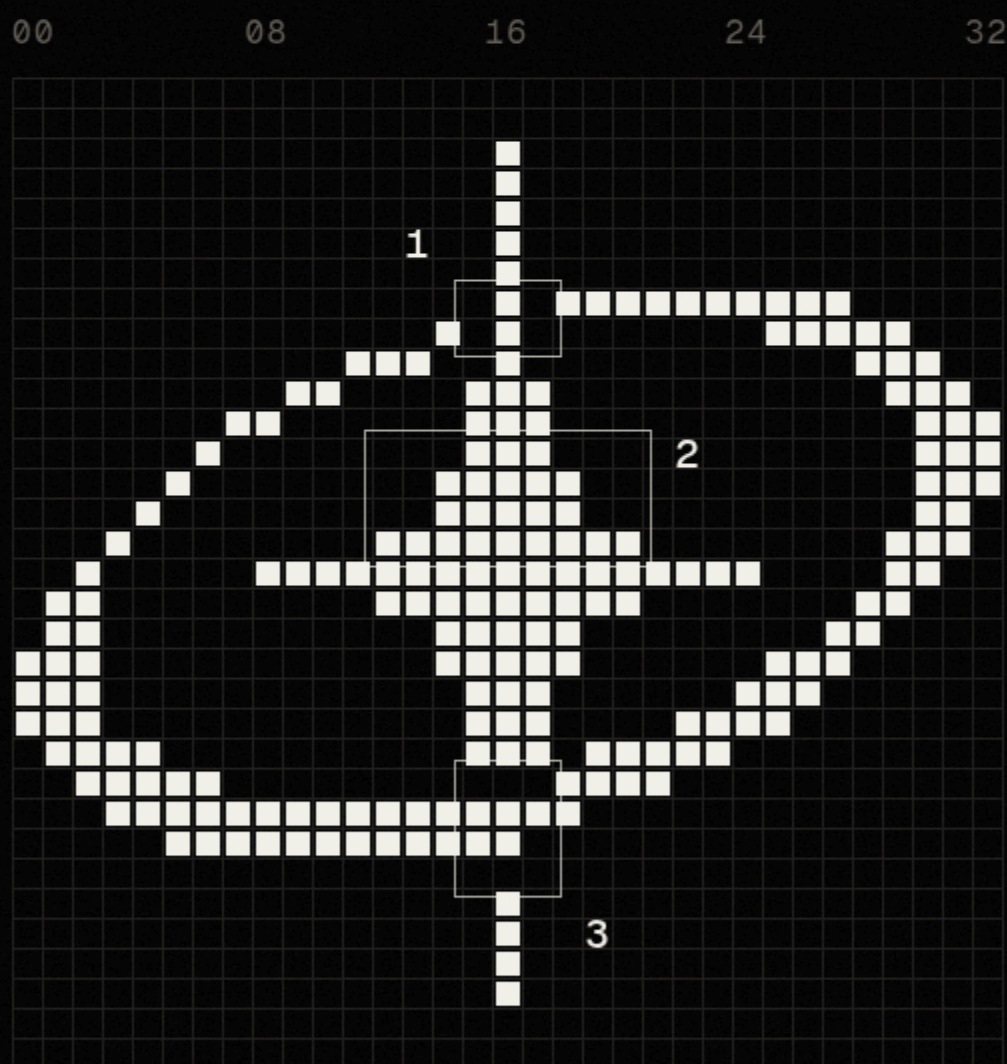

lesson 6 drawn

everything is drawn.

no icon set, no stock, no image files.

the grain is feTurbulence. the ring is rastered.

the star and both crossings are drawn by hand.

1 the far crossing
the ring stops a cell
short of the needle.

2 the star
a cell narrower each row,
so it reads as a sparkle.

3 the near crossing
the needle stops a cell short of the ring.

fig. 7 the mark, a cell at a time.

nothing happens
unless it's mutual.
